Since receiving your telephone call I have again had our existing vacancies canvassed to find whether we have anything suitable for you now.

I regret that our situation has not changed since we last discussed the possibility of employment with you, and that we do not at present have an appropriate spot where you might fit in.

We do have your papers on file and should anything become available for which you might be considered, you can be sure we will contact you.

Your continued interest is appreciated.

Sincerely,

R. H. HILLENKOTTER
Rear Admiral, USN
Director of Central Intelligence
